"We are pleased and honored that our doctors continue to be recognized by their peers for their outstanding work here at New England Eye Center", said William R Sacco, Director of Marketing for the New England Eye Center. "As a leading medical teaching institution in Boston, we take great pride in delivering first class medical care to every patient.

Each year, Castle Connolly sends out tens of thousands of invitation letters to physicians in private practice-randomly selected-as well as to the medical leadership of major medical centers, specialty hospitals, teaching hospitals and regional medical centers. Invited physicians can go online to a special restricted-access website and nominate outstanding physicians in various specialties and subspecialties "to whom you would send members of your family". The process asks not only for doctors who excel in academic medicine and research, but also for those with outstanding interpersonal skills.
